FEBRUARY

Books—more than 95,000 of them—go in and out of HP's book room, available to every student. Kenneth Mead (right), one of the student workers this semester, delivers books to homerooms. . . . More books—about 10,000—are on hand for Parkers to use in the school library, including many of the newest published. Each year Miss Ruth Irwin, librarian, initiates 10-B's into the intricacies of card catalogues and call numbers (below). . . . HP's literary collection was enlarged this term by a gift of the medical books of the late Dr. Victor Marburger, whose son Richard (far right) attends HPHS.

STAR STUDDED REVUE

"Star Studded Revue," one of the first dramatic productions of the semester, included much student talent, almost 200 Parkers taking part. With a large number of the cast on stage (below) Jerry Ryan presented Mrs. Juva Beeman, director, with an orchid.

Cowboy Bob Dustin (lower right) provided some real honest-to-goodness western lyrics in the "Deep in the Heart of Texas" scene. Carmen Miranda—better known as Dale Brown (lower left)—was one of the hits of the program and provided the "glamor" of the evening.

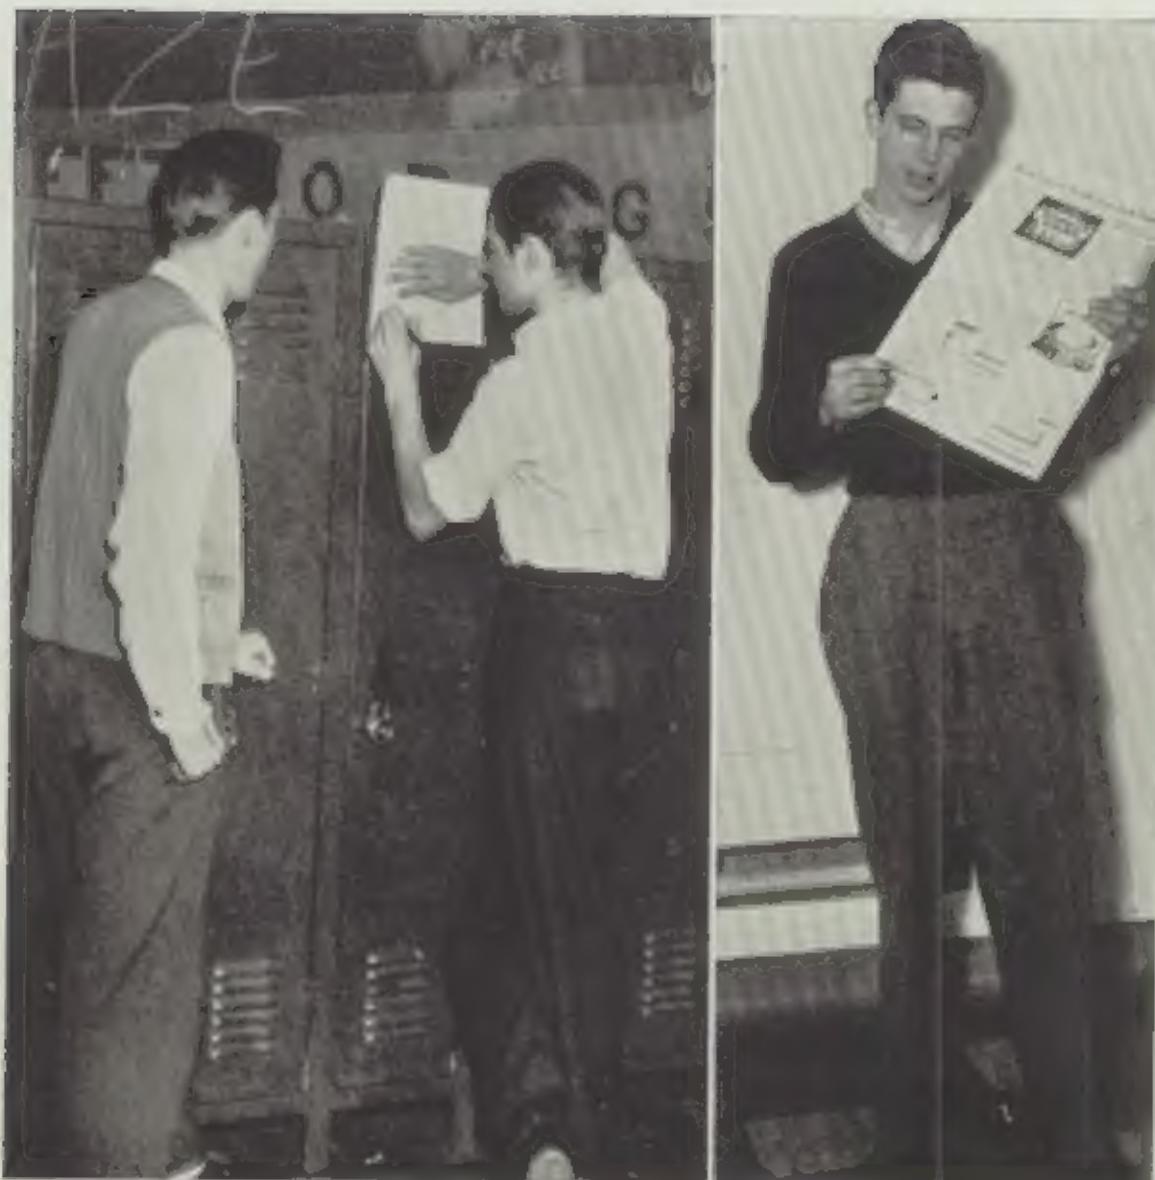

Each year the senior girls put their collective heads together and elect one of their number to attend a DAR convention. She must be the best all-around girl in the entire class; and in 1944 tiny Barbara Cottingham (center right) was elected to that most honorable position. . . . The pained expression on the face of Chris Moore (top) only indicates his chagrin at some particularly difficult problem. Chris takes care of student opinion polls, of which there are not a few, and spends hours over averages, percentages, and tabulations of yes's and no's. . . . The senior class is not slow; the senior class is not stodgy; the senior class does not take a long time to make up its mind. In fact, the senior class does things on the spur of the moment. One day the Incidental was proposed; same day committees were appointed, and the dance was advertised. It was held four days later, and incidentally was a success. Member of publicity committee Julius Tokar (center left) energetically sells tickets for this dance. . . . For those who wanted to learn to "trip the light fantastic" Miss Bly Quigley obliged by holding a class.

ELECTIONS

Every semester, come fire or flood, nominating rallies are held and candidates are put up for class office. Every semester, come tornado or volcano, nominees send out petitions and work for election. Every semester, then, these officers proudly wear a crown of victory for a few days, and then sink into oblivion—or wherever inactive officials reside. Nomination is a simple affair. Such a feeling of brotherly love exists between students that "You nominate me; I'll nominate you" is the accepted thing. Then come the petitions—long slips of paper, with which everyone buzzes around, signing and being signed for with great fervor. After a few days, then, campaign speeches are given. They are masterpieces of phraseology, abundant in adjectives, in which the candidate promises everything from burning the school down, to abolishing mids, finals, and report cards. Thus class elections in HPHS.

Members of the Student Association cabinet, Barbara Cottingham and Jane Keller, work (left) with Miss Therese Kneip counting and sorting ballots for elections. The SA has charge of elections and manages them from start to finish with efficiency.

WAR BONDS

Bond drives are, and will be to the war's end, a part of HP's school activities. The Fourth War Loan, coming at the break between semesters, was the biggest and best yet. A "Spec" extra, in January, announced drive objectives, setting pre-examination homeroom quotas, based on enrollment, totaling $60,000. Actual campaigns were opened in rallies addressed by Principal D. L. Pyle and Superintendent H. L. Shibler. After finals, the Student Association sponsored two assembly-rallies, at which 46 of HP's gallants were awarded their ribbons, the other 24 having received theirs in the old semester. Dave Gelston, JC's sleight-of-hand man illustrated with rope tricks (upper right) his talk on bonds and Allied supply lines. By this time quotas had already been raised twice, with every sign of another "upping." Thirty-one of a possible 47 homerooms had already gone over their quotas, led by Rooms 201 and 304 with $12,042.85 and $7,712.15 as their respective totals. Opening with a quota of $109,000, Parkers met it and bettered it by more than 75 percent. Smiles adorned the faces of the bond committee when the chairman announced the record-breaking total of $189,523.40.

Gallants of the upper brackets are (clockwise) Mary McCall, Barbara Reisdorf, student bond chairman, Mary Verteogian, James Wood, and Frances Morse, each of whom sold over $5,000.

MARCHING MEN

Lunch-time halls as empty as the one shown at the left are the order of the day since the ROTC took over the job of patrolling. This is not the only duty of the "marching men" (below), whose number now totals 200. Drilling, manual of arms, calisthenics, theory, and field day preparations—in uniform and out—fill regular hours daily, while their extra-curricular activities include the salvaging of waste paper. Six-A period hall guard (bottom) stand pre-duty inspection.

CAGERETTES

When HP's Blue and White basketball girls finished this season, they had won three games, lost two. The schools they defeated were Redford, 49-10; Cooley, 20-18; and Commerce, 42-11. HP's everlasting rival, Northern, is yet to be defeated; Hamtramck also took a game from the girls. Bernadine and Virginia Acker, were the team's high and second scoring players, respectively throughout all games. Fifteen girls were awarded their basketball letters.

Bear cagers garnered only two victories out of ten starts, but the season was tabbed a successful one by Coach Dwight Dyer. Why? Because of a stunning defeat to the Eskimos of Northern, 29-28. The other win, over Cass, brought the squad to a peak. Final score on this game was 33-28. Leading the team this year was Bob Khelokian, who scored 73 points. Eyeing his veterans, Coach Dyer says, "Better days are sure to come, and I hope they will come soon."

Varsity squad—top row: Savage, Welby (trainer), Forni, Manoogian (manager), Bevan, Coach Dyer, Rushman Boyajian; second row: A Tadian, Cheger, Khelokian (captain,) Nader, and Bosenberry. All the team except Rees Bevan and Don Rushman will return next year, and there is a good reserve team on the way up.

VAR'SITY AT WORK

ALL - SCHOOL COMEDY

Departing from tradition, the All-School Comedy was presented in the auditorium during the activity period, but a hilarious time was had by all. The Victory Corps in full regalia gave a patriotic skit which ended in an impressive flag salute (above). The winning skit, given by Hi-Y was introduced by the energetic young mountaineer (center left). Don Rushman president of the victorious club proudly shows his trophy (center right). Speakers' Bureau members proved their versatility by prancing around in Roman togs and carrying bodies off the stage (left), while the disreputable hillbillies from the Hi-Y skit with their "shootin' irons" and "tabacco" were caught in action by the camera (bottom).

DOINGS OF THE PARKERS

Tennis enthusiasts, in a pre-season class, assume a proper stance under the tutelage of Miss Jean Hoxie (top). . . . To prove that the United States is really a melting pot, and that in its student body HP has representatives of many nations, a group of students of foreign descent spoke in assembly of their parents' reasons for coming to America (upper center).

While drumming up trade and telling them the facts, Eddie Watkins, president of the Lettermen, sells tickets for the Lettermen's dance (lower center).

To introduce new members and brush up on the social amenities in France, the French Club held a tea at the home of their sponsor, Miss Gladys Lynch, and chattered all the while in the best French they knew (bottom).

By next September first, the entire HP school building from Second to Third will be redecorated. School employees are well on the way with plastering. Painting will begin soon after school is dismissed in June. Several different tones of paint are planned to be distributed throughout the building. Rooms on the north side will be done over in light, warm colors to counteract the lack of sunlight, while rooms on the south side will be toned down with cooler shades. Highland Park High will be a bright, cheerful place for all to return to. Lately students have had to be more observant in order to dodge the ladders that are swung around by the workmen. Several Parkers (right) pass under the scaffolds on the hall stairway, hoping that they don't get plastered.

Many students were extremely anxious to be patriotic purchasers of War Stamps on March 10—because with every 10 or 25 cent stamp went a lollipop. Miss Kneip's sixth hour U. S. history class (left above) seem to have been liberal buyers, and are evidently enjoying the whole affair. Six girls from Miss Eunice Herald's senior homemaking class planned and sponsored the drive. Ida D'Ambrose, Shirley Elward, Betty Jeremias, Lyla Kassem, Mary Sarrechia, and Irene Lionas spent hours before and after school for three days making the 700 lollipops to be given away. The girls themselves donated the materials for the confections. Stamps were sold during fifth and sixth periods in the classes and also in the halls (left.) Grand total was $150 for Uncle Sam. The sale was credited to the HPHS bonds and stamp record.

RESERVES

Reserve basketeers met with a little more luck than the varsity, and won five games, while losing the same number. Dan Longaker, Mark Estelle, Joe Delock, and a newcomer to the squad who played half the year, Pete Benenati, stood out for the tenth graders. Longaker led the scoring race with 69 points, while Estelle set the season mark for one game by bagging 15 points at Pershing. The team was at a disadvantage throughout the year, as many of the steadier players were shifted back and forth between varsity and reserve.

Pap's Music Masters (top) provide music for a PB publicity stunt, while Don Wisner mills among the mass, making like a Polar Bear. . . . Crusaders for the cause (center left) are Phyllis Williams, Carol Smart, Mary Bradley, Bob Petrie, Chuck Milan, Bob Wisner, and Shirley Loeblich, who were high sellers in PB subscription drive

Future GIs (center right) slave over a three-hour V-12 test on March 15. Dollarmen, Joe Gattan, Charles Milan, Maig Apkarian, Harry Commodore, John Murray, Bob Gentile, Don Jess, John Demerjian, and James Gamble dig deep for dollars and buy 12 extra PBs for Highland Park servicemen (bottom).

MERMAIDS

The HP "water queens" defeated three of their opponents; they were defeated by Cooley. Carolyn Glaze, who took first place honors in all diving events, (above right) demonstrates a swan dive. Banchiu and McNeilly (left below) rank first and second places, respectively, in the challenge for the 40-yard back stroke at the Central meet. APRIL

Joint meetings have been on the agenda of the Hi-Y and Girls Club this semester. Programs, two in all, included a picnic at Palmer and a "Y" dance, which featured dancing and cake-bar refreshments (top). . . . Scrapbooks in Review! Yes, it's the Modern Misses, taking final glances through their handiwork before it's sent to army hospitals (lower center). . . . Also deserving of praise is the welfare committee (bottom) of the SA, who raised more than $90 by sale of Esoter seals. Members are Bob Petrie, Phyllis Williams, Bob Hull, Pat Finsterwald, John Zimmerman.

Dummies, deadlines, columns, captions, proofs of pages, headlines headaches—total them and add an All-American rating, and you have The Spectator. Most of the editing is done, first hour, in publications class (center) when assignments and deadlines are made. Actual writing, though, is done at all times of day and night, and this also applies to typing and proofreading. Frequent press conferences occur first hour, not the least of which are those with Supt. Shibler (lower center). Distribution of the finished product is handled by the representatives of the homerooms, overseen by the circulation staff. Town Talk tips are also turned in by these room reporters. . . . An additional job was given the representatives this semester; namely assisting in the tabulation of the April student opinion poll. Top: Chris Moore, center, and George Hoppin, beside board, explain to a regular Thursday representatives' meeting the method for marking poll tabulation sheets. . . . After everything else has been said and done, come the "joyboard" elections. Each staff member votes for what he or she thinks is the best piece of writing in each of four divisions: editorial, news, feature story, and feature column. The winners in each division are posted on a special bulletin board, known as the joyboard (bottom) as a reward and a goal.

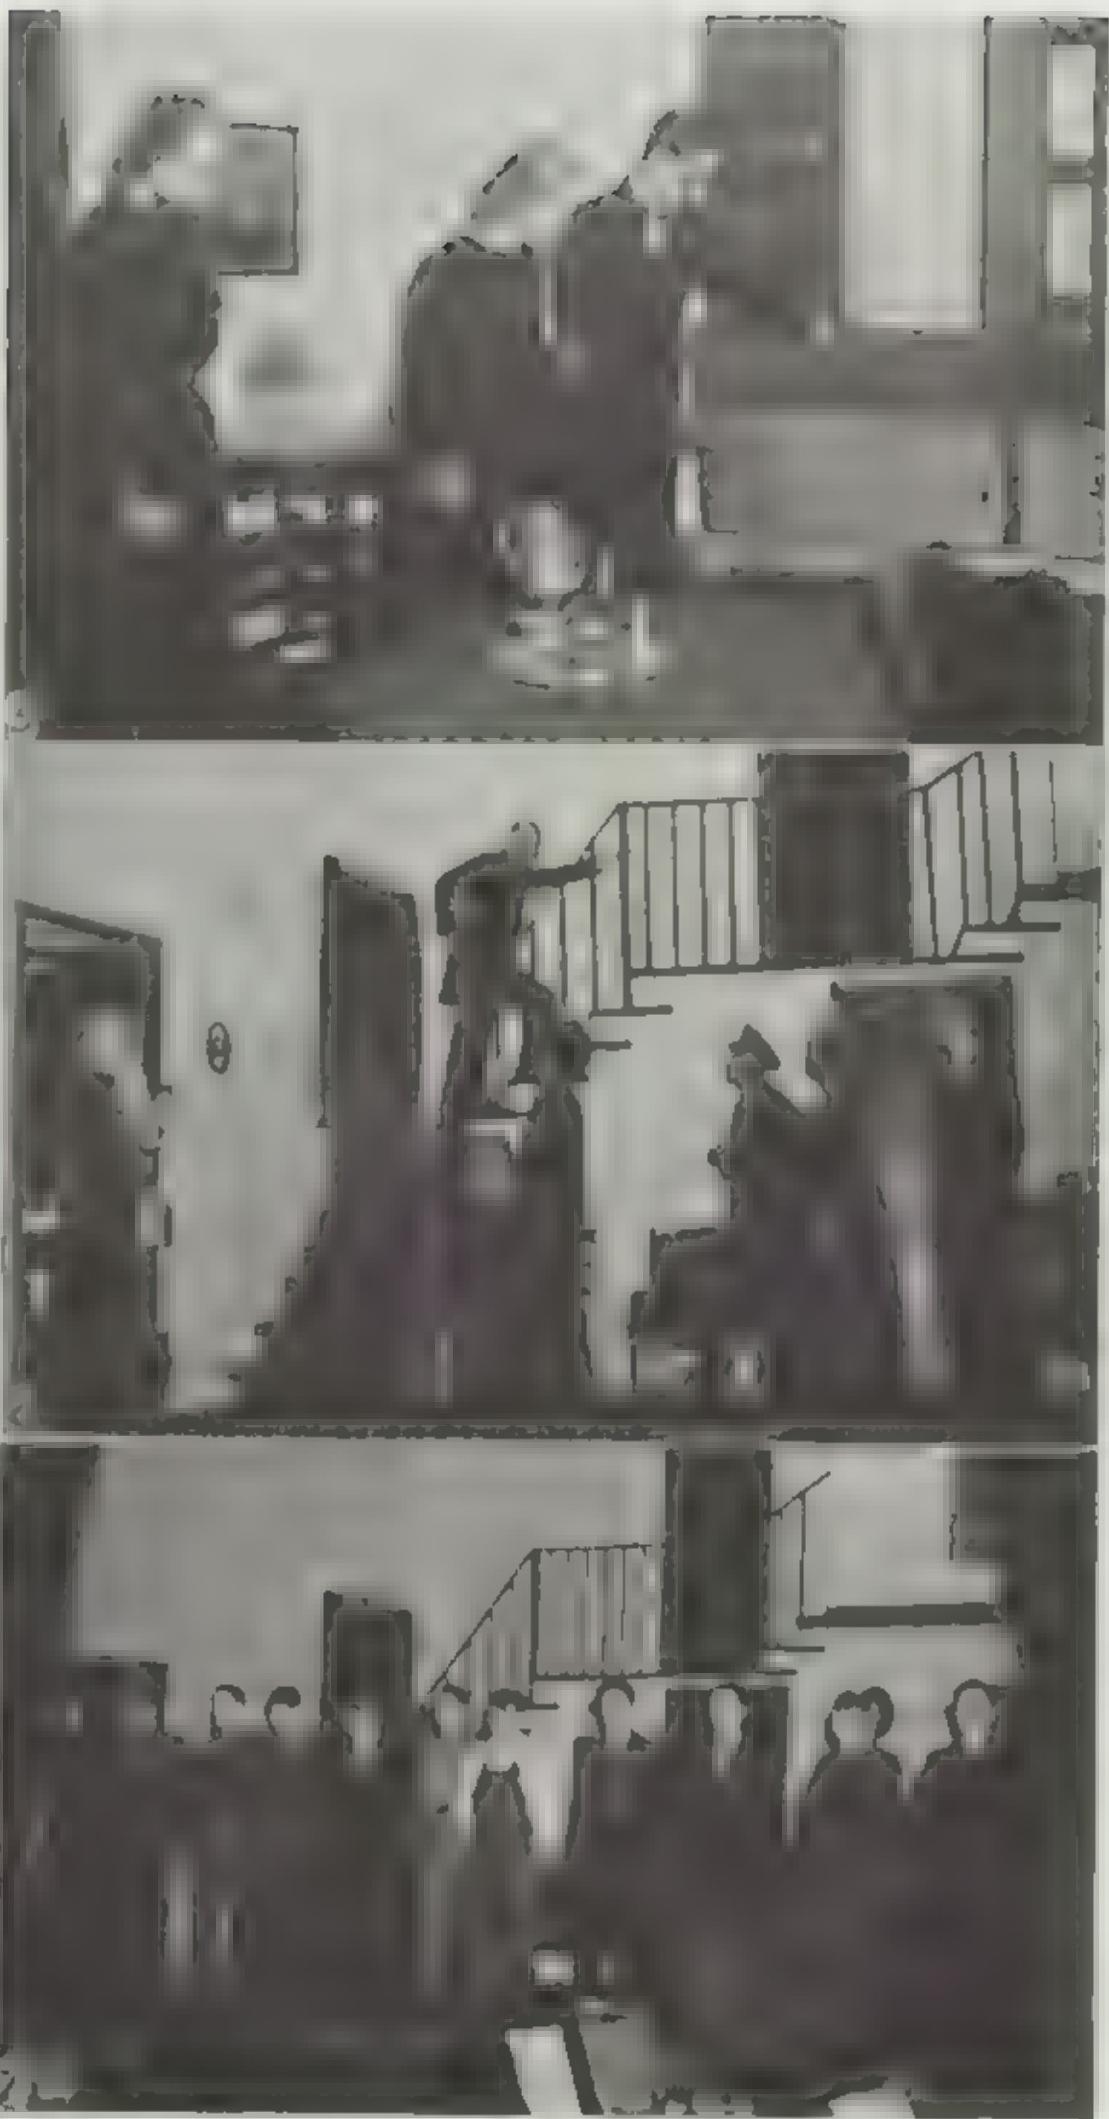

ARSENIC AND OLD LACE

Plenty of thrills and chills were to be found in this semester's senior play, "Arsenic and Old Lace" provided by loads of corpses, poison, and lunatics. The two old sisters with the uncomfortable habit of making cadavers out of people are shown (1) making one out of Mr. Gibbs (Paul Hoener) with the aid of some "arsenic" wine. Barbara Knowles and Louise Murphy play the homicidally intentioned Abby and Martha. . . . One murder too many planned by Abby and Martha, however, proved to be their downfall. It was that of the superintendent (2) of Happydale Sanatorium (Ray Becker). . . . Teddy Roosevelt (Dale Brown) gives some instructions (3) to unbalanced uncle, Jonathan (Lothar Witteborg) and his pal, Doctor Einstein (Frank Burt). . . . When Jonathan escaped from the asylum where he had been "residing," he, to the chagrin of his sisters, brought Doctor Einstein home with him (4). A tense moment (5) as drama critic Mortimer makes a gruesome discovery—another one of the unlucky victims of the Misses Martha and Abby—much to the chagrin of those two dear old ladies. . . . Another delightful character (6), an unbalanced nephew, firm in his belief that he is the original Teddy Roosevelt, proves his point by charging up San Juan Hill (the stairs). The "ersatz" Teddy is better known in real life as Dale Brown. . . . All twelve cadavers (7) make their curtain calls, much to the enjoyment of the audience, who were anxious to get a look at the sisters' hand work. . . . "All's well that ends well," and Elaine and Mortimer (8) seem to think they've found an excellent way to end it. Though providing the romantic interest there two were notably out of place at first, because they were sane. "Arsenic and Old Lace" was hailed as a great success. Looks as if Highland Parkers like plays with fugitives from the "booby-hatch"

A goodly share of the applause for "Arsenic and Old Lace" went to Mrs. Juva Beeman, coach, and Ray Becker, student director. The curtain rose at 8:15 on Friday evening, April 14, after some juggling with dates, as the performance had originally been scheduled for April 1. Seniors rejoiced, for not only was this a "senior play" backed by seniors, but it also was attended by one of the finest audiences in Highland Park history.

ENSEMBLES

Drummers deluxe are Dick Anderson and Bill DeFrain, who took first place honors with their drum duets in the annual Solo and Ensemble Festival, this spring. Bill also rated a first place spot for his snare drum solo. . . . A French horn virtuoso, HP's Nancy Fisher added another "first" to the collection with her solo. The brass section also presented a French horn quartet at the Festival, which features Nancy, Arthur Chandler, Bob Bernard, and Bill Adams. Harry Karagozian, George Kashian, Charles Papozian, and Bedros Tanealian, more winners for HP, were closed in the second division for their clarinet quartet. . . . The talents of Jack Dudley, David Jones, and Glenn Wilcox, combined in a cornet trio, (below, right) easily scored a first place for HP in the brass section. Altogether 12 places were won by Highland Park's instrumentalists—six firsts, five seconds, and one third.

Soloists

Violin solos by both Louis Zetye (left) and Dorothy Mileman (right) received second place awards as judged by Prof. David Mattern of the University of Michigan, who judged all the strings in the contest. Other judges were Leonard Falcone, of Michigan State College, who judged the brass section; Larry Teal, of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, judge of the wood winds; and Sidney Berg, of Fowlerville public schools, judge of percussion.

Beulah Anthony won top honors for her piano solo, the judge for which was Homer LaGassey of the Detroit public schools. . . . Still another musically prominent Parker is Bill Glencorse, whose trombone solo placed in second division. The Michigan Band and Orchestra Association sponsored the competition in which 38 students from both Junior and Senior High entered, while James L. Buckborough, head of instrumental music, was the local committee chairman, handling details of the Festival. Connie Shbler won an "A" on her work as an accompanist.

HP speakers, under the direction of Miss Veola Gifford emerged victorious many times this spring, to prove that talking can be a worthwhile habit. First in oratory in the district contests was Jerry Ryan (1), while Cecile Rhinehart (2) took top place in the declamation section of the district forensic races. Peggy Dzler (3) captured highest honors in the district contest and then went on to repeat the performance in the regional contests in dramatic reading . . . The John Paul Jones oration contest, sponsored by the Detroit Times, was won by Bob McGhee (4) in both the school and the district. First place in the school declamation contest was taken by Jane Procter (5). . . . Polly Bushnell (6), dramatic reader, received second place in district trials and James Cronin (7) placed second in extempore speaking.

The homeroom is the heart of the school. It is here that drives, campaigns, and group projects are carried on. On this page are shown but a few of the third-hour activities. Most homerooms have daily devotional exercises. Room 217 (1) made the Bible in Room 217. That there might not be any well-flowers budding from 101, those seniors had a drawing lesson over a week (2). Room 20 showed sales totals (3) as they topped the list on contributions to the Easter seal drive last April. Room 210 started a mailing project (4). These graphs used each issue of The Spectator to record about 7000 envelopes. Postage is contributed by many homerooms, and most of the papers are donated by tenth graders after they have read them. V, in this school, stands for both Vocational and Victory. Not only Room 2-4, pictured here (5) but most of the other homerooms in the vocational building have set up toward five 100 percent stamp and band purchases.

TRACK, GOLF, TENNIS

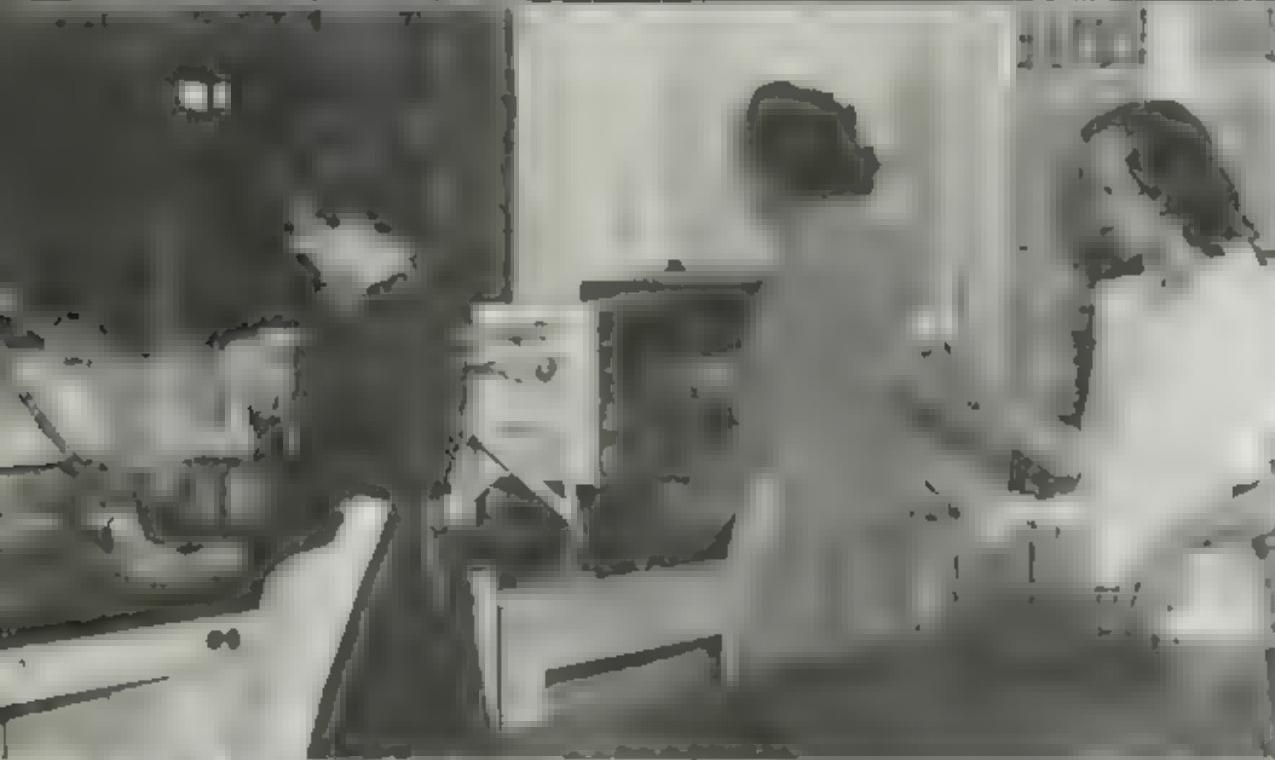

Highland Park's thinclads suffered three losses in as many dual meets this spring, being outpointed by Pershing and Northern, and just nosed out by a good Northeastern team. The squad gradually improved as the season progressed, but lack of experienced material kept its victory chances down. Gordon Campbell was tops in the sprints for the Parkers this year, gaining most of his points in the 100- and 220-yard dashes, while Rease Bevan, speedy 440-yard sprinter and relay man, managed to lead the Parkers in number of points garnered, with 16. Peter Poppe was second high in the point total, gathering his points in the shot-put, relay, and 220-yard dash. Ramon Rozier won his letter by competing in the broad jump and both dashes. Bob Wisner, who high jumped for the Bears, is shown clearing the bar (upper right), while hurdlers Jim Tanner and Bill Austin shuttle over the barriers (upper left). The center picture caught Highland Park sprinters at the post during an early practice session.

Coming up with a winning team, the golfers of old HP ended the season, taking three matches while dropping only one. Victories over Cass, Hamtramck, and Northeastern offset a defeat by Pershing. Coach Verne Handley had two standouts, John Shuler and Bob Slater. Completing the team were Bruce Paxton and John Cox, with John McCloy and Dave Johnstone as alternates. . . . The tennis team was not quite so successful, but managed to win three meets, losing only two. Oscar Boyajian led the team, aided by Jim Fixel, Bob Moers, John McVean, Jim Harrison, Jim Sterrett, Jack Marx, and Bob Petrie.

BASEBALL

Headed by a left-handed wizard named Bill Pierce, who, in the first six games, had five shutouts, including a no-hit game, the Parker baseball team was favorite, as the season neared its end, to capture the east side title. Under a new coach, Ray Stites, they ran rough-shod over Hamtramck, 15-0 in the season opener. After such a good start they squeezed by Pershing, 1-0; then shut out Northern, Cass, and Pershing again. A non-league game with Northeastern ended 9-2, the Parkers winning. Leading the attack at the plate were Joe Delock and Chuck Banchiu. Pierce, who started all the games but the Northeastern fray, proved that shutouts were no fluke, as he turned in five. After a third shutout, he was known as Mr. Zero. At the right Pierce shows the windup that not only won five shutouts for the Blue and White but also pitched the Owls to the DBF Class D championship last year. Pierce is also a very good hitter, as he hit 400-plus for the Owls last year. At the bottom of the page is the 1944 Polar Bear baseball team. Most boys on the team are only tenth graders; so prospects for the future look pretty bright. The only graduating members of the squad are Eddie Watkins, regular lead-off man, and Ashod Tadian, first string catcher. Both are 12-B's. Completing the lineup is Charlie Banchiu at first, Joe Delock at second, Corky Tadian at short, Dan Longaker and Herlo Wendell at third, and Watkins, Pete Benenati, Bud Crane and George Farquhar in the outfield. With only three more games left, the Parkers have the best chance for a championship since 1939, when they lost to Cooley in the finals. The signing of Stites will help not only the baseball team, but also the football team next fall. Stites is a former three-letter man from Highland Park and has been coaching sports at Western State Teachers.

HP embellishes the fundamentals with a wide range of specialized classes. Many of these were formed with an eye to helping the war effort, while others are traditional. (Top left), in the home-making lab Jean Mettila helps Jean Whitney gather the wherewithal to whip up a piece of culinary perfection. History classes meet, on schedule, (top right) with Miss Cyril Aronson, art teacher, whose lectures trace the history of art from primitive man to the present day. . . . The general public gets a look (upper center) at the imposing array of machines owned by the commercial department. The dictaphone, adding machine, and mimeograph are only a few which are in evidence. The finished products of this department are in constant demand for jobs in the war effort.

A relatively new addition to the curriculum is a class in laboratory technique headed by Clarence Altenburg. The class meets in a specially equipped science lab. (lower center). Each member is required to put in 25 hours getting on-the-spot experience observing and helping in hospital laboratories. Boys of Mr. Boze's welding class (bottom) pose outside the vocational building. They spend their days learning the intricacies of welding, even arc welding. Machines are loaned by the state.

Every semester the Lit II classes depart from regular procedure for a day to organize a panel discussion. With a student as head, the teacher retires to the background (Barbara Chope led the discussion here). The seventh hour class (top), probed the depths of Emerson's "Self Reliance" and came to some weighty conclusions but took time out for a chuckle at a side remark from Bob Frick. . . . Cause of many aches, pains, and groans and the source of a new type of female amazon, is the girls' body building class, (upper center) better known under the old title of gym. The state says this course is a must for all girls. . . . Once or twice a week the chemistry classes adjourn to the laboratory to practice what the instructor has been teaching. Surrounded by test tubes, beakers, and Bunsen burners they concoct many weird sights and evil smells (lower center). . . . Maps and globes occupied the spotlight in this session of Mrs. Flora Maholland's global geography class (bottom). This subject, which deals with the surface configuration of the earth in its relation to man, has assumed added importance during war time.

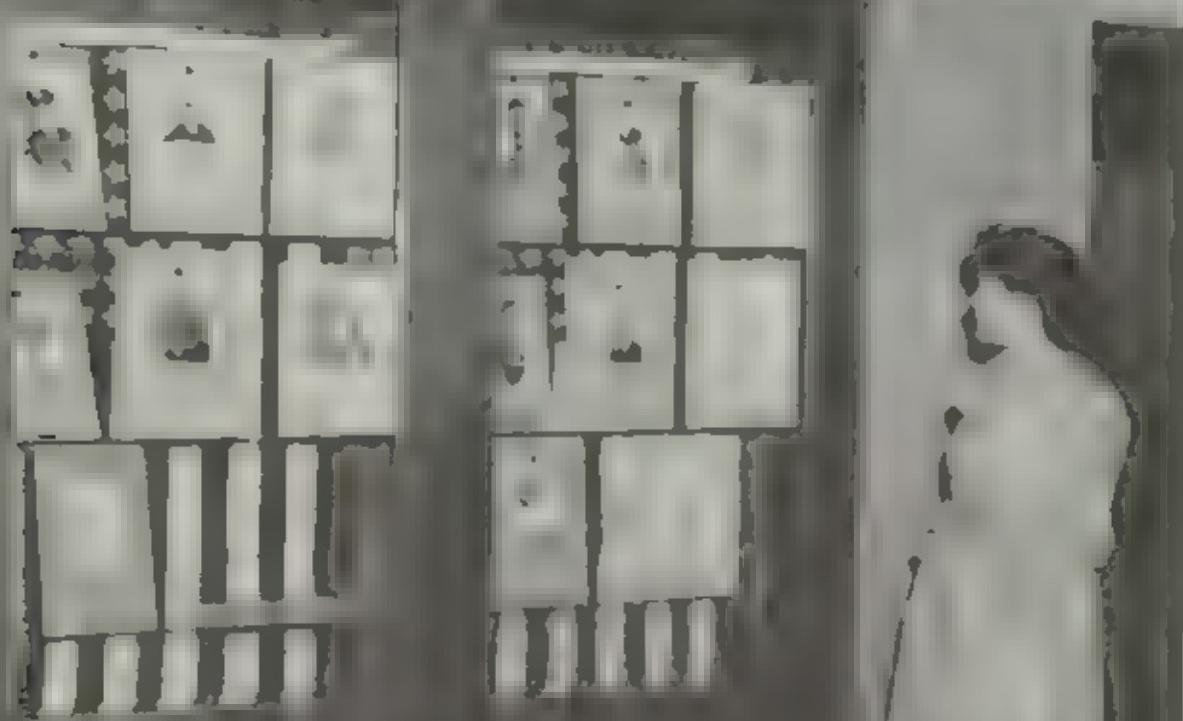

Here comes the bride! Yes, it's Barbara Jones, trying on her bridal gown for "Trial by Jury" (top left) with the assistance of Rose Dembrian, kneeling, and Dorothy Howell . . . "Hurrah," is what the chorus of spectators is shouting (below). This is a rehearsal shot of the opera's last act; the judge has just passed sentence. When HP speaks musically, it never forgets the Bass Clef Club, an all-boy organization, represented by (top, left to right) Carl Ganshorn, George Churchill, Ward Howard, James Flatt, Roy M. Parsons (sponsor), George Salzman, Paul Woolley, and James Snider.

JUNE

SENIORS---THEIR ACTIVITIES, COMMITTEES, OFFICERS

Director Ray Becker, he of the ravishing smile, confers (left) with members of the Class Day cast. The production, "Panic on the Potomac," was enlivened by the presence of not one, but four valedictorians, Jane Keller, Bob Lauer, Marvel Rathbun, and Lenamyra Saulson. Class salutatorian is Betty Lewis. . . . Joyful as they contemplate the class's financial status after the senior play are vice-president, John McCullough; president, Bob Petrie; secretary, Peggy Dozier; and treasurer, Marjorie Rankin. . . . Lending an interested ear to the suggestions of Bob Frick concerning the prom are (bottom) ticket, location, and band committee chairmen; Connie Gates, Evelyn Archbold, Jim Nichols, Bob, Peggy Dozier, and Bruce Miller. It was decided to hold the dance at the Crystal Ballroom, the music being supplied by Lowry Clark and the tickets selling for $2.40 per couple. . . . This June '44 class inaugurated several new activities to fill any and all spare moments they might have during graduation week. Notable of these are a "swing out" complete with trimmings and a "field day" with all seniors picnicking at Palmer Park. Commencement services will mark the graduation of 17 students from JC as well as the 251 seniors.

Several members of the class, having gained the required credits in basic training, will graduate from Highland Park Senior High while serving with the armed forces. Their diplomas will be sent to them where they are stationed. In the Senior High office is a guest-book for service men, placed there by the Student Association. No day passes without the addition of several new names. Shown opposite (center) is Capt. Taylor Drysdale registering and Seaman Ervin C. Schultz waiting his turn to sign up.

I AM the spirit of Highland Park. I am only a voice, perhaps just an echo; but I am as real as the grind of learning and then leaving. I can never be lost as long as two friends gather together. In hospitals or barracks; in offices, homes; even on battlefields, I am there. . . . I am a sophomore on the first day of school, bewildered and a little frightened. I'm the shoving into the lunchline for hotdogs and sandwiches. I am the Polar Bear—status and spirit—and the boys and girls who meet there, talk there. . . . I'm rallies and HI and watching the team lose a point and caring terribly, but not caring. I'm the realization that those team members are your buddies and they're working for you. . . . I'm pride, and a blue slip, and sharing a joke on a teacher. I'm cramming for exams, standing outside the study halls waiting to be let in, and rattling facts to anyone who will listen. . . . I'm the attempt to trap the ROTC into letting you through the halls without a permit, and perhaps even pride that they stopped you, when you see them changing guard. . . . I'm standing at lockers and then having to make a mad dash to class at 8:14. I'm the service flag in the front hall, and the honor roll, and the pledge of allegiance. . . . I'm the building, and the teachers; but most of all, I'm the boys and girls. I am immortal because there will always be more of you—carrying on because of me.
